CENTENARY COLLEGE

1983-84 CC LADY BASKETBALL

THE OUTLOOK

Centenary College head basketball coach Joe St. Andre feels there are a lot of questions to be answered before the verdict can be released on his 1983-84 Ladies.

After losing five starters and three letter winners, the home team fans will definitely need to purchase a program to recognize the new lineup.

Two years ago when St. Andre initiated the Ladies program, he brought in a host of junior college players, now that they have left, it's time for the young players to take their turn.

Young and inexperienced is what the Ladies will be when they open the season. Two freshmen, three sophomores, two juniors and two seniors comprise St. Andre's nine-lady squad.

Of the seven returning letter winners, only two played in more than 13 games last year. Treasure Thomas and Amy Slaton each played in 26 games.

Even though the Ladies will be shorthanded, they are going to be very aggressive and fun to watch. This year's team will be short, but the strong point of their game will be outside shooting.

Slaton averaged 5.4 points per game last year in a reserve role, while Linda Howard (1.5 points in 11 games), Penny Lee (1.0 points in 13 games), Linda Keiser (0.4 points in 12 games), and Liz Hindman (3.4 points in seven games) all did well in limited roles.

Where the Ladies will be looking for help the most will be the inside game. Mary Jo Monzingo, a two-year starter behind Zebber Satcher, along with Thomas are the only two returnees at those positions.

Monzingo averaged 2.1 points and 1.2 rebounds per game last year, and she has matured into a strong and intelligent player. Thomas (5.0 pts., 2.1 rebs.) is expected to start at one of the forward slots, but a key to how well the Ladies finish may depend on the development of Penny Brill.

Brill, a 6-1 freshman from Johannesburg, South Africa, has played 13 years at the national level. She was named their National Player of the Year last year, but they play a different brand of basketball.

The only other newcomer, Kristi Hill, will give the Ladies added depth at the forward position. Hill, a 5-7 freshman from Mt. Pleasant, Texas, averaged 8.1 points per game in high school.

St. Andre feels the Ladies are lacking speed and size. Therefore, he says it's going to be very important to slow the ball down and take extra good shots.

We can expect the Ladies to play a lot of defense with emphasis on keeping their opponents from getting more than one shot at the basket.

"We are going to need to take advantage of our strengths, and not our faults," said coach St. Andre of his Ladies. "We better be able to shoot lights out, because we're not going to be out-rebounding very many folks."

Joe St. Andre
Head Coach

Entering his third season as women's basketball coach at Centenary College, Joe St. Andre is the only coach the Ladies program has ever known.

When St. Andre, at 37, takes to the tartan surface in the Gold Dome to open the 1983-84 season, he will have to overcome the highest mountain he's had to climb in three years.

But that's nothing new for the Natchitoches, Louisiana native. St. Andre took the first-year Ladies Basketball team two years ago and instantly reaped success with a 22-10 record, and a top 16 finish in the AIAW-Division II.

In his second season, the Ladies moved up a notch on the competitive ladder, joining the NAIA, after the AIAW folded.

Even though his Ladies finished with a disappointing 10-16 mark, he still guided the Ladies to their second consecutive post-season playoff in as many years, losing the first-round game to Springhill College in Birmingham.

This year, St. Andre will be working with a team that does not return one starter. In fact, only three returning players have playing experience.

A graduate of Northwestern State in 1969 with a B.S. in Mathematics, St. Andre started coaching basketball in the fall of 1970 at Haughton High School.

After two years at Haughton, he accepted the Athletic Director's job at Princeton Junior High. In addition, he coached football, basketball, and track.

In 1977, St. Andre left Princeton and returned to his alma mater to work on his masters. In the following spring, he received his masters in education.

He is married to the former Brenda Quinn of Natchitoches. They have two children, one son Brian ten, and one daughter Michaela six.
